Memorandum on the Rainfall of June and July and the Probable Amount during August and September 1965

1. Weather in India during June and July :

June.—The southwest monsoon set in over south Kerala on 26th May about 5 days in advance of the normal date. Under the influence of a severe cyclonic storm in the Bay of Bengal moving northward towards East Pakistan during the last week of May, the Bay branch of the monsoon advanced upto the east central Bay by the end of the month. A further advance into the north-east Bay and eastern parts of Assam took place during the first week of June.

In association with a trough of low pressure persisting over the east central Arabian Sea off the west coast during the first fortnight, the monsoon advanced slowly northwards along the west coast and covered the Konkan by the middle of the month. Fairly well distributed rainfall occurred over the Peninsula during this period with a number of heavy falls along the west coast. The monsoon did not advance further northwards during the second fortnight and its activity was moderate over the Peninsula during this period. However, it was quite active in Kerala during the third week and in parts of Maharashtra State during the last week of the month.

The rainfall activity over Assam and Sub-Himalayan West Bengal decreased considerably after the first week. A trough of low pressure persisting over the north and adjoining central Bay of Bengal caused an increase in the monsoon activity over the Bay Islands during the second week. The monsoon advanced somewhat slowly during the third week over the central parts of the country and the remaining parts of northeast India. An upper air cyclonic circulation which developed over Gangetic West Bengal and neighbourhood on 24th intensified and a low pressure area formed over East Pakistan on 29th. Under its influence, there was well distributed rainfall over northeast India.

Only one western disturbance moved across the extreme north of the country causing a few thundershowers over northwest India in the later part of the first week.

Rainfall for the month of June was in large excess in south Assam and in moderate excess in Rayalaseema and north Interior Mysore. It was normal in north Assam, West Bengal, the Konkan, Marathwada and Kerala, in slight defect in the Bay Islands, Vidarbha, Telangana and coastal Mysore, in moderate defect in Himachal Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Madhya Maharashtra, coastal Andhra Pradesh, the Madras State and south Interior Mysore and in large defect over the rest of the country.

July.—The well marked low pressure area lying over East Pakistan and adjoining Gangetic West Bengal at the end of June moved westnorth/northwestwards to Rajasthan, weakened and later moved away northeastwards across the Western Himalayas by 6th July. Under its influence, the monsoon advanced into Gujarat State and southeast Rajasthan and extended further into Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh by the end of the first week. The axis of the monsoon trough shifted northwards and lay close to the foot of the Himalayas from 6th to 10th causing heavy rains in the northern parts of northeast India. According to press reports, most of the rivers in Assam, Sub-Himalayan West Bengal and Bihar Plains rose in spate and inundated vast areas, particularly in Jorhat sub-division and in Darbhanga and Jalpaiguri districts. Western Himalayas and adjoining plains also received good thundershowers during the second week. Earlier a western disturbance moving across the extreme north of the country had caused a few thundershowers in Western Himalayas.

The monsoon activity increased generally over the country during the second fortnight as a result of the development of two deep depressions in the Bay of Bengal, a land depression over west Madhya Pradesh and a low pressure area over Orissa. The first depression formed over the northwest Bay on 13th and moving westnorth-west/northwest it merged into the seasonal low by 17th. Under its influence, the monsoon advanced further westwards and covered the entire country by 17th. The monsoon was particularly active in north Peninsula, Gujarat State and west coast. Bombay (Santacruz) recorded 37 cm. of rain on 16th. According to press reports, a number of rivers in Maharashtra State were in spate affecting road traffic. This depression was followed by a low pressure area which moved from Orissa to Gujarat and thence northwestwards during the period 19th—23rd. The second depression formed over the northwest Bay on 26th and moving inland weakened over east Uttar Pradesh by 30th. The third depression formed over west Madhya Pradesh centred near Gwalior on 31st. Abu recorded 32 cm. of rain on 31st. According to newspaper reports, a number of rivers in Orissa and adjoining Bihar State were in spate causing inundation of low lying areas. Road and rail traffic in and around Bhopal were also reported to be dislocated due to heavy rains.

Rainfall for the month of July was in large excess in west Rajasthan and Telangana, in moderate excess in the Konkan, Madhya Maharashtra, Marathwada and north Interior Mysore and in slight excess in the Bay Islands, Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, Orissa, the Punjab and Gujarat Region. It was in slight defect in east Rajasthan, Vidarbha, Rayalaseema, the Madras State, coastal and south Interior Mysore and the Arabian Sea Islands, in moderate defect in east Uttar Pradesh, Himachal Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and Kerala and in large defect in Jammu and Kashmir. It was normal over the rest of the country.

June and July.—Although the monsoon set in over south Kerala on 26th May about five days in advance of the normal date, the further advance was slow being about 10 to 15 days behind the normal date over most parts of northern and central India. However, it established itself over the entire country by 17th July, about a week later than the normal date. The rainfall activity during June was generally sub-normal over the country. The activity, however, increased during July, particularly during the second fortnight. Heavy rains leading to floods were reported from Assam, Sub-Himalayan West Bengal and Bihar Plains in first half of the month and from Orissa and West Madhya Pradesh during the second half.

Rainfall for June and July combined was in large excess in west Rajasthan, in moderate excess in south Assam, Telangana and north Interior Mysore, in slight excess in the Konkan and Marathwada and normal in the Bay Islands, north Assam, West Bengal, Madhya Maharashtra and Rayalaseema. It was in moderate defect in Bihar Plains, Uttar Pradesh, Himachal Pradesh, east Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and the Arabian Sea Islands and in large defect in Jammu and Kashmir. It was in slight defect over the rest of the country.

The following table gives for each sub-division the total rainfall during the period, its departure from normal and the percentage departure from normal :—

2. Conditions having influence on the rain of August and September 1965 :

A foreshadowing of the monsoon rainfall of June to September was issued early in June. Recent data have been examined to see if any useful supplementary foreshadowing for the remainder of the season can now be given. The relevant data are the following :—

Indian Pressure in July.—In July pressure was generally slightly above normal over the entire country. The maximum positive departures being more prominent almost over the entire Peninsula.

Indian Ocean Pressure in July.—At Mauritius, pressure was in excess of normal by 1.3 mb.

Java Rain.—The monthly rainfall departures from October 1964 to February 1965 were +143%, +27%, —34%, +18% and —14% respectively.

South Rhodesia Rain.—Rainfall from October 1964 to April 1965 was in defect by 189.2 mm.

South American Pressure.—Pressure departures were as follows :—

	Buenos Aires	Cordoba	Santiago
	mb.	mb.	mb.
June 1965 ..	—0.5	—1.9	—0.3
July 1965 ..	—1.7	—1.9	—1.9

Punjab and Neighbourhood Temperature Range.—Departure of the Punjab and Neighbourhood Temperature Range ‡(April+May) 1965 was —1.7°C.

Indo-Gangetic River Discharges.—Mean departure of the total river discharges during April and May 1965 was in excess by 162 (10,000 cusecs).

3. Inferences from the Data :

In foreshadowing the August and September rainfall in the Peninsula [taken to consist of Maharashtra, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Interior Mysore North, Telangana and coastal Mysore (excluding South Kanara)], the chief factors in the order of decreasing reliability as judged from the available data are Mauritius Pressure, Java Rain, South Rhodesia Rain and Indian Pressure. Of the factors Mauritius Pressure, Indian Pressure and Java Rain are all very unfavourable and South Rhodesia Rain indifferent. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four-to-one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1965 in the Peninsula will lie below 99% of the normal.

For Northwest India (taken to consist of the Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi and Rajasthan), the factors used in the order of decreasing reliability, as judged by the available data are Indo-Gangetic River Discharges, Indian Pressure, Punjab and Neighbourhood Temperature Range, South American Pressure and South Rhodesia Rain. This year South Rhodesia Rain and Punjab and Neighbourhood Temperature Range are both very favourable, Indian Pressure moderately unfavourable, South American Pressure and Indo-Gangetic River discharges are both very unfavourable.

The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four-to-one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1965 in Northwest India will lie below 113% of the normal.

4. Summary :

The total rainfall during August and September 1965 is likely to be slightly below normal both in the Peninsula and Northwest India.
